LOST TOURIST FINDS HERSELF

Lost tourist finds herself

More than 50 people were involved in a search and rescue operation in the volcanic region of Eldgjá in south Iceland on Saturday.

Police were called to the area after it was reported that a female member of a tour group that was traveling around the region had failed to return to the bus.

The tourist was described as being “of Asian origin, aged 20–30, and about 5 feet 3 inches.” She was wearing “dark clothing” and spoke fluent English. The police asked for a helicopter to assist the rescue operation, but it was too foggy for it to fly. So the police, helped by the tourists themselves, began to look for the missing woman on foot.

LOST TOURIST FINDS HERSELF

The search continued through the night, but at 3:00 in the morning the search was called off when it was discovered that the missing woman was not only alive and well, but was actually assisting in the search.

What had happened was that the woman had gotten off the bus for some fresh air and had changed her clothes. Because of that, other people didn't recognize her and thought that she was missing. The tour organizer had counted the tourists, but had miscounted. Police said that the woman had not recognized that the description of the missing person was her. The police said, "She did not realize that she was the person everybody (including herself) was searching for until several hours later."

CHICKEN FIGHT

Two chefs got into a fight last week after Andrew Palmer ¹accused Geoff Lewis of stealing one of his recipes and publishing it in a local newspaper.

Andrew Palmer, 28, claimed that he had invented the dish of cold chicken with strawberry mayonnaise at his gastropub, The Pine Tree Tavern. However, restaurant chef Geoff Lewis, 30, who writes a weekly newspaper column on cooking, ²denied copying the recipe and said the dish was his own creation.

So, the local newspaper, the Beacon Gazette, ³invited both chefs to prepare the dish at their offices to see whose recipe it really was. They ⁴agreed to come, and the “cook-off” took place yesterday. Newspaper staff tried both dishes and unanimously declared Andrew’s to be the winner. Geoff’s dish was said to be “lacking in flavor.” He later ⁵admitted having seen the dish on the menu at Andrew’s pub, and he has ⁶offered to publish an apology in the following issue of the Gazette. “In any case,” he said later, “I’ve decided that it works better with raspberries.”

DOG CALLS FOR HELP

Dog calls for help

Dogs are often called “Man’s best friend” because they sometimes help save their owner’s life. But George, a two-year-old basset hound in Yorkshire in the north of England, managed to save his own life by dialling 999.

George had been left at home on his own and had knocked the phone on the floor. He became entangled with the cord of the phone and was choking. Somehow he must have touched the number 9 key of the phone with his paws a few times, and as a result, he dialed the UK emergency number: 999. All the operator could hear was the the sound of somebody choking and breathing heavily, so she sent the police to the house. The police got in with the help of a neighbor, Paul Walker, who had a spare key. To their amazement they found George with the cord around his neck. He was absolutely terrified, and couldn’t free himself. They quickly pulled the phone cord out of the wall. Mr. Walker said, “It was incredible. You could see his paw print on the key of the phone. He literally saved his own life.”

George’s owners, Steve Brown and his daughter Lydia, 18, were as amazed as everybody else. Lydia said, “It’s not as if George is particularly smart. In fact, he’s really foolish – he just likes to chew socks most of the time.”
